Mr. Underwood said, while most of the speeches tomorrow would be favorable to "the cause," the roil call probably would show two-thirds of the House against, rather than for, the resolution of State's rights," said Mr. Underwood.

"It is a fundamental question of State's rights," said Mr. Underwood.

Congressman Mondell, author of the resolution, said he feared the Democrats will attempt to dodge the issue. The suffrage resolution will be taken up under a special rule reported from the Rules Committee. Although Chairman Henry will report the rule and the House probably will adopt it, many members who vote for the rule to call up the suffrage question are expected to vote against suffrage it self on the final roil call at 7 oclock tomorrow to listen to the debate arc Mrs. Frank E. Miss Heth is to have charge of this display in an exact duplicate of the Mt. Vernen home, erected in Golden Gate Park to receive the relics. Miss Heth leaves Washington on Pebruary 1 to take charge of this department. She has worked for some months collecting the material to furnish the house, and has been able to secure some of the furnishings of Mt. Vernon itself. She is herself the owner of a large number of Washington relics which came to her from her adopted father, the late Charles Goldsborough, of Maryland.

"These gang fights are getting to be a nuisance." he said, as he urged the customer to turn the other cheek.

Outside the door lay John Johnson, of 484 East 164th street, with a builet in his temple and another in his stomach. He was rushed to Bellevue Hospital, dying. His brother, Andrew, told the police of the East 104th street station they were renewing old acquaintances and were walking with a man who once had been their enemy, but who professed friendship.

At 165th street and Third avenue the man drew a revolver and fired five shots at the brothers. Two buillets hit John Johnson, one hit the window, and two went wild. The shooter escaped. Andrew Johnson said he did not know their assailant's name.
